About Us

The Iceni Firepit company was founded by husband and wife team, Chris and Chris Lock, and was born from a desire to own a beautifully designed sculptural firepit.

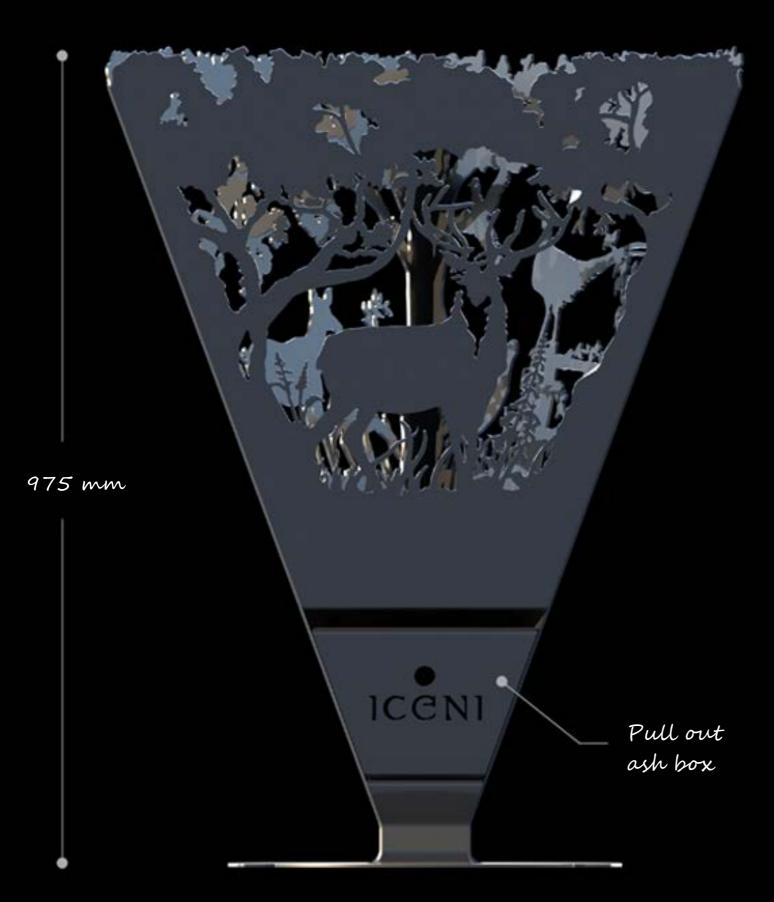

It was important to both of us to use British materials and local skilled crafts people. The creative design process is a collaboration between us as we both have a keen interest in art & design, with my husband being an international award winning yacht designer.

We live in a traditional Suffolk village, the inspiration for all our products.

The Patio

The Woodland

Inspired by Suffolk's beautiful countryside, the Woodland has proved to be our most popular firepit.

Each panel depicts a scene typically found amongst our British landscape.

The first panel has the proud stag stood amongst trees and foxgloves. The second panel has a doe and her grazing fawn, whilst the third panel depicts a typical scene of pheasants.

When lit, the firepit comes alive and the story-telling begins. It is easy to see why this firepit is so popular.

The Marshland

Living next to a water mere, it was a natural choice to design the Marshland themed firepot.

Herons are regular visitors, whilst dragonflies swoop amongst the reeds and bulrushes.

When lit, the whole firepit comes alive and the story-telling begins.

The Oak Apple

Quintessentially English, the Oak Apple design showcases the oak apple and the oak gall.

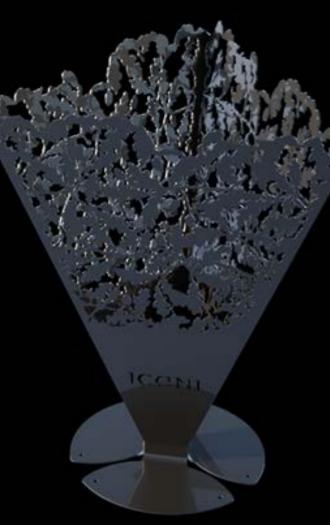

Together they intertwine to make up three stunning panels.

This firepit truly comes alive when lit and the story-telling begins.

The Oriental

The Oriental design has a very distinct style.

Pathways winding like the rivers they represent, which lead you on a journey over a bridge and through the garden to a pagoda by the water's edge.

A place for you to sit in peaceful contemplation.

The Equestrian

With a horse crazed daughter with walls full of photographs of her pony club and eventing, the Equestrian firepit was created with each panel depicting the three eventing phases - dressage, show jumping, and the thrilling cross country phase.
